NORTHERN PACIFIC IMPROVEMENTS COST MILLIONS

Organize to Win Alameda Base, Says S. F. C. of C.

Reasons for the selection of San Francisco Bay as the main naval base of the Pacific Coast is deemed imperative on the part of navy experts who have investigated all possible sites are given in a statement issued today by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

Fred Brandt, editor of the weekly publication of the San Francisco organization, has investigated the matter and conferred with the board of navy experts headed by Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman. His statement on the subject says:

"A main naval operating base of the Pacific Coast on San Francisco Bay is imperative."

"This declaration has come from the board of navy experts headed by Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman, and it has directed growing national attention to the tideands site presented by the City of Alameda the company's trans-continental traffic, but no more than had been expected, and thus, he said, had been counterbalanced by the more intensive cultivation of local business and short haul operations.

VESSEL SEIZED BY MUTINEERS AND STOWAWAYS

Japanese Freighter Held On Trip to Vancouver by An Armed Gang

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 26.—

Nine armed sailors, plotting with twenty-nine stowaways, held the voyage of the 6000-ton freighter Tabu Maru under a virtual reign of terror during her voyage from Kobe, Japan, to this port. The voyage, which was dominated by the rebellious party, ended last night when the vessel arrived.

The tempestuous trip was revailed after the captain of the Tabu Maru wireless to this port for help and on arrival here the crew members and stowaways were arrested by police and immigration officers.

The stowaways, according to ship officers, were huddled in the ship's coal bunkers and made their appearance on deck a few days after the vessel left Kobe en route for this port. Joined by nine members of the crew, most of whom were heavily armed with revolvers, told the Japanese captain that they would be in charge of the voyage. All of the mutineers were Japanese. There was no resistance on the part of the ship's officers or the thirty remaining members of the crew.

For ten days the ship was under the sway of the stowaways and nine crew members. As the vessel neared Vancouver harbor yesterday afternoon the mutineers told the captain to land at a cer-certain dock. The captain then sent a wireless message to Captain Barney Johnson, Vancouver representative of the vessel, who had a quad of police and immigration officials on hand when the ship arived.

asion of her birthday

FREE GIFT TO NATION.

"The cost of the site to the Government is absolutely nothing, for it has been deeded to the nation as an outright gift by the citizens of Alameda, on the eastern side of

San Francisco Bay.

"Meanwhile, facts about the Alameda site itself are well worth considering. What are these facts?

"The Alameda site is situated at the western end of the island of Alameda, on the eastern side of

San Francisco Bay.

"It contains at present 5110 acres, or one-third square miles. This exceeds the combined area of the Hunter's Point, on the San Francisco side of the bay, and the Mare Island Navy Yard, by 2665 acres—or nearly 60 per cent in addition to this, the tract is capable of extension to 8000 acres, or twelve and one-half square miles, by taking adjacent land which is available whenever required. This would make it the largest naval base area owned by any government.

The Alameda site is ideally placed with respect to military requirements, according to the naval experts. This is due to its accessibility, on the one hand, and, on the other, to its protection from the possible fire of enemy fleets.

"It lies immediately contiguous to the deepest water of San Francisco Bay. The portion of the bay adjoining the Alameda site to the westward, in fact, is that known as "Man-o'-War Row"—the officially designated anchorage ground of the Pacific Fleet. That means that the ships of the Navy, while lying at their accustomed anchorage in Pacific Coast waters, would at the same time be lying at the great Pacific Coast naval base. The amount of time and money that would be saved the Navy through such proximity would be incalculable.

PROTECTED BY HILLS.

"In spite of its nearness to the Golden Gate, the Alameda site is completely outside the line of direct fire from the ocean. From this it is protected by the hills of San Francisco and by Goat Island. Before it could be sighted directly by the gunners of an enemy fleet, the latter would have to pass the presumably impregnable coast defense of the Golden Gate, and then for a distance of eight miles or more run the gauntlet of whatever portion of the American fleet might be located in the bay at the time.

All this makes the San Francisco Navy would run the minimum of danger if being paralyzed in time of war by an attack on its base of operations.

"The great construction, repair, and supply functions of a naval base render its location with respect to labor and transportation of paramount importance. In these the Alameda site is exceptionally the greatest concentrated labor supply on the Pacific Coast. Adjoining it on one side are Oakland, Berkeley, and Alameda, with a combined population of 350,000, on the other is San Francisco, with a population of over 725,000. These cities comprise the industrial center of the West. And all portions of this great population area are connected with the Alameda site by excellent transportation facilities.

TRANSPORTATION IDEAL.

"From a commercial and transportation point of view, its position is equally advantageous. It is at the terminus of three great transcontinental railroads—the Southern Pacific, the Western Pacific, and the Santa Fe. Within a radius of a few miles are the docks and piers of one of the great ports of the world, connecting the naval base site by the most direct ocean routes with foreign markets as well as with the outlying possessions of the United States. The McKeon board of naval officers, which recommended selection of the Alameda site, gave special attention to this feature in the following words:

"The board is impressed with the much more favorable location of this site for the storage of fuel, both coal and oil, and for all ships' stores and industrial supplies delivered by rail. This feature makes this site by far the most desirable one on which to locate the complete supply base, so essential to support the activities of the fleet in the Pacific, as well as for the transhipment to Pearl Harbor, Guam, and the Philippines."

The Delphic club heads the list of fraternities and men's house clubs with a scholarship standing of 2.8456. The highest attainment of a women's house was 2.3106 as attained by the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Farm Home Branch
Organized in Atlanta

ATLANTA, Feb. 26.—A farm home department has been organized here with the following officers: Mrs. W. M. Cookson, chairman; Mrs. F. Buch, vice-chairman; Mrs. E. J. Voorheis, secretary. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Ethel Potter. Miss Elizabeth Willis, county demonstrator, was present and explained the work of the home department. After considering various plans it was decided to take up the clothing project, with Mrs. Potter as leader. Later in the season the department will take up food preservation, with Mrs. H. Henry as assistant leader. Tuesday, June 5, was set for evaporator day, when a demonstrator will be present to assist in making home-made evaporators.

FLAG FUND RAISED.
RICHMOND, Feb. 26.—A collection taken at the First Presbyterian church on Friday night during the showing of the Rainey African animal pictures netted a fair sum which will be used toward the purchase of a flag for the Sunday school. Short talks were made by Rev. H. K. Sanborne, pastor of the church, and by J. A. Long.

School Pupils
Not Dope Users,
Says Principal

BUFFALO, Feb. 26.—Dr. Franklin C. Gram, city health officer, former prison physician and student of the drug evil, declared that in all his experience he has never found a public or high school student a victim of the drug habit.

"The only authority for the stories that dope is being sold to school children in several of our large cities is the statement of narcotic addicts themselves, and they are notorious liars," Dr. Gram says. "Nothing they say can be accepted for the truth, unless there is corroboration from other sources."

"I cannot conceive how high or grade school students could become dope users without such conditions being speedily discovered by their parents or teachers. No instance of the kind has been reported to the Buffalo health department."

"If anyone becomes a dope addict he has only himself to blame. It is not true, as generally assumed, that innocent persons are started on the dope route through taking drugs in medicine, or through the urging of illicit peddlers. Individual moral weakness is almost always the cause of their downfall."

"Flu" Raging as New York Seeks Coal Famine End

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
LEAVE TO TRIBUNE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—With hospitals crowded by "flu" and pneumonia cases, and fuel scarcer than at any previous period this winter, New York is making every effort to bring bargeloads of coal across the ice-choked Hudson river from New Jersey for a reserve supply.

Never before in the history of the city have hospitals been as overcrowded. Officials attribute this largely to the severe weather and shortage of fuel, in addition to a great many accident cases due to ice-covered pavements and slippery streets.

Coal movement across the Hudson will be continued day and night in an effort to relieve the emergency.

Sensible—Economical!

The new complete Finished Family Service offered by the Broadway Laundry is essentially a sensible and economical service.

One trial will convince any housewife that the cost, the drudgery and the inconvenience of home laundering, whether she does the work herself or hires it done, will not stand comparison with the cost of our service.

Remember, the Broadway Laundry service is something entirely different. It does ALL of the work, including necessary starching and hand-ironing. Each piece is returned ready for use, carefully packed in a non-crushable heavy cardboard container. The charges are made upon the pound basis and not by the piece.

RISING RECORD AGAIN BROKEN IN COLLEGE CITY

Berkeley Permits Run Up a Total of $148,955 for the Week.

BERKELEY, Feb. 24.—Berkeley again broke records for building activities last week, registering permits totaling $148,955 for the week ending Saturday noon.

As the largest single item on the list of building permits granted was a $40,000 apartment house which will be built at 3100 College avenue for K. G. Baile. This will be three stories in height and contain 35 rooms. Dr. J. Vickerson secured a permit for a two-story building containing four stories and an apartment house of 14 rooms at 2917-78 Telegraph avenue, while G. A. Mattern will build stores and apartments at an estimated cost of $30,000 at 3600-04 Shattuck avenue and 2042 Dwight way. This building will house a new branch of the Berkeley Commercial and Savings Company.

Among the other permits was one for a building to be erected by Frank L. Naylor on the north side of Center Street east of Shattuck avenue, approximating an expenditure of $80,000. This will contain stores and a loft.

McCormick Silent On Separation
From Diva Bride

BY UNITED PRESS
LEADERSHIP TO TRIBUNE.

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 26.—Harold McCormick, millionaire husband of Anna Walke, opera star, today was very, very positive, exceedingly routine and absolutely silent—silent at least regarding his separation from Anna.

Eleven servants pose between McCormick and the public in the big house he has rented, temporarily, at Coronado. Interviewers must write their questions and see them handed from one servant to another.

Once since he has been here some of the servants were off guard and an interviewer slipped into the presence of the man whose marital adventures have made him famous.

By a hypothetical question that could be answered with a negative or positive shake of the head, this interviewer won from McCormick the admission that there is a separation, a temporary affair. The servants came back and the interview was ended before further round-about questioning could reveal the cause.

It seems that McCormick has promised himself or his bride that he will not talk.

McCormick is restless and nervous, says the few Coronadoans who have seen him.

It was not until 1860, that lead pencils were manufactured in the United States.

OAKLAND INFELDERS AND OUTFIELDERS ARRIVE IN CAM

CRYSTAL LAUNDRY DEFEATS DEL MONTE CAFE AND WINS TRIBUNE LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

Thousands of Fans Were Out to See Final Game in Tribune League

One of the largest crowds to ever witness a bush ball game in the Bay section was on hand at Alberger Field yesterday afternoon to witness the Del Monte Cafe and Crystal Laundry teams battle for the Class A championship of The Oakland TRIBUNE Mid-winter League. The Crystals won the championship. Fans packed the stands and formed a circle of five and six deep around the sidelines and the outfield. Here are shown a couple of scenes of the crowd along the right field line. Notice how they even crowded the fences. The upper picture shows OLLIE BURNS, second sacker of the Crystals at bat, with RAY GIMBAL, of the Del Montes catching, and GEORGE TAYLOR doing the umpiring.

CRYSTAL LAUNDRY WINS FINAL GAME FROM DEL MONTES

Carter's Men Hammer McNamara At Will, While Losers Play Indifferent Ball In Championship Contest; Final Count 11 to 0.

By DOUG. MONTELL.

Taking advantage of every opportunity, playing in the stride that characterized their work throughout the Coast Division season and catching the Del-Monte Cafes with their morale at the lowest it has been this year, the Crystal Laundry hammered their way to an 11 to 0 win over Otto Egenberger's American Division athletes in the game that cinched the Class A championship of The TRIBUNE league yesterday afternoon at Alberger Field. Manager Bob Carter's hirings made merry with the willow, staging a free for all hit-fest while the Del Montes, touted as a formidable hitting club, looked pitifully weak before the pitching of Murchio.

The Crystals were deserving of all that came to them, playing gilt-edged ball throughout while the Del Montes, playing listless, indifferent baseball, scarcely looked the part of contenders.

Those who had doped the final greased but his mates in the field gave him support that was calculated to prevent the opposition getting out generally.

Particularly did Jimmy Devine,

the live-wire third sacker, captain of the Crystals, play hangup ball putting up one of the best exhibitions of any tosser on either club.

A momentary bubble of a bounder from the bat of McNamara by Jabobs was the only thing that mattered a perfect exhibition in the hit by the winners and this did no damage.

Three innings found the two clubs playing on even terms, the Crystals having made a muck in the first through carelessness of the Del Montes but McNamara held them well in hand save for that marker.

Then came the break that appeared to take the sap out of the losers and which added an equal amount of pepper to the Crystals.

Three bunched hits in the fourth marked the first sign of the potential strength of the Crystals with Nelson singed but Gregor fanned.

A pass was issued to Jacobs and Shea's double scored Nelson.

A four run rally marked the sixth as the Crystals' best frame.

Johnson drew a walk and was sacrificed along by Devine Peterson fanned but Burns took advantage

of a wild streak and walked.

Gregor's double scored Johnson

and Gregor's single registered

Burns and Nelson. Jacobs singled and Gregor counted when the Del

Montes' batsman was out.

From the point of view of actual action, the Crystals had the edge over McNamara. The Crystals had perfect control throughout, issuing no passes and whipping six of the Del Montes

McNamara, who not touched the baseball, was either dead or dead or dead wrong. Seven walks marred his record from the mound while ten batters bit the dust when his offerings were not what the Crystals' pitchers wanted them to be.

Red Johnson sounded the knell of the Del Monte hopes when he picked one for two sacks to start the first frame. Jimmy Devine advanced him a base and was safe when the play at third failed. Peterson gained life when Devine threw his chance wide to first, Johnson counting and Devine making third. A perfect throw to Gimbal by Combatalde cut off Devine at the plate when Burns hit a sharp bouncer to short and Nelson hit into a double play to end the frame.

Devine led off with a hit but was forced at second and a snappy double play ended the Del Montes in the first.

The next action came in the fourth for the Crystals when Burns led off with a double only to be caught off second by McNamara.

Nelson singed but Gregor fanned. A pass was issued to Jacobs and Shea's double scored Nelson.

A four run rally marked the fifth as the Crystals' best frame.

Johnson drew a walk and was

sacrificed along by Devine Peter-

son fanned but Burns took advantage

of a wild streak and walked.

and Gregor's single registered

Burns and Nelson. Jacobs singled

Red Johnson sounded the knell of the Del Montes when Burns hit a double play to Jacobs and Devine making third base and above the line. Devine's error letting Jabobs reach second. The lancing ended without more damage.

Three more tallied in the seventh as the Crystals' best frame.

Johnson drew a walk and was

sacrificed along by Devine Peter-

of a wild streak and walked.

Devine's double in the eighth proved to mean one more tally for the Crystals as he took on a passed ball and scored when Gregor hit one after Peterson and Burns had been retired.

Not satisfied the Crystals scored their final run in the ninth, a bunt

by Tapson giving Jacobs a life,

Johnson walking and Davis scoring with a single.

The first Del Monte man to reach second was in the seventh when Kyte led off with a single and advanced on a passed ball and

WINTER-DATES PLAY WELL DONE BY FULTONIANS

"Famous Mrs. Fair" Delightful Bit of Stage Craft, is Ably Produced.

By WOOD SOAMES.

"You can't be married and a free agent without making some one suffer."

This line spoken by Jeffrey Fair in the second act of "The Famous Mrs. Fair," when things are beginning to happen, is the keynote of one of the most delightful plays ever presented on the stage of the Fulton theater and one which won new triumphs for George Rand, Katherine Van Buren, Eleanor Parker and Frank Darlen.

Written by James Forbes, a past-master at the art of playwriting, "The Famous Mrs. Fair" is, aside from its value as dramatic entertainment, a technical delight. It is a play that builds up gradually, step by step until its last glorious act, which is alive with sentiment, drama and, in the present instance, good acting.

Mrs. Fair returned from four years with the feminine forces of the American Army, rated as a major and decorated by grateful governments. She felt that she must continue her career and now needs to contract for transcontinental lecturing. It was a bad move, for things were at a breaking point in her household and went completely to smash with her departure.

Eleanor Parker returned to the Fulton Players as Mrs. Fair, and Miss Parker lacked the decisiveness necessary to make the role impressive in the first two acts she more than overbalanced it with her motherly love, wifey devotion and sympathetic encompassing of the role in the final scenes.

Katherine Van Buren was the daughter, at first a ganging youngster, again a budding debutante, then a noisy flapper, but always a devoted daughter. Particularly fine were her turbulent scenes and that dramatic last act. The third of the trio made famous by Miller Bates and Chatterton, was enacted by George Rand, who made Jeffrey Fair a stalwart, if mischievous, individual dominating of personality and always a gentleman. He was a capable reader.

If space permitted much should be written of Frank Darlen's work as Anna Fair. The veteran actor may have assumed the rôle of the woman with some trepidation, but his fears were unnecessary. To all intents and purposes he was the budding youth, in face, figure, action and voice. His artistry brushed away the years with a careless hand.

Others to attract attention were Agnes Shanford, demure as the unaccustomed bride, but inclined to the sing-song vocal; John Ivan, polished and hard as the villain; Lea Penman, seductive as the vampiress-widow; Frederick Green, Lora Rogers, Anna MacNaughton, Minnie Mae Sisson, George Knowlton and Barbara Lee.

"The Famous Mrs. Fair" is a model of playwriting and abounds in sparkling lines, natural comedy and common sense, and it was handsomely mounted.

STATE

Rex Beach's "The Net," filmed as "Fair Lady," is showing a great draw at the State theater the first half of the week.

Betty Elyne is starred and a splendid supporting cast includes Robert Elliott. Much of the story is laid in New Orleans and the whole company has been transported there for the picture.

The picture is a comedy, and it is a model of playwriting and abounds in sparkling lines, natural comedy and common sense, and it was handsomely mounted.

Bank Clearings Here Increase / 50 Per Cent in Fifteen Years

Building Permits and Postal Receipts of Oakland Also Show Remarkable Gains.

A growth in bank clearings of 750 per cent in fifteen years is an Oakland record that challenges every other city in the country.

On the accompanying chart are shown three significant barometers of business activity—bank clearings, building permits and postal receipts.

When compared with the population growth of Oakland, these items dispise emphatically the statement that Oakland's population is growing faster than her.

ability to care for that population. Bank clearings mean industrial and commercial activity; building permits mean stable population settling down to live here.

The chart shows that since 1908 the postal receipts in Oakland have grown twice as fast as population, building permits three times as fast, and bank clearings seven and one-half times as fast.

A projection of these fifteen years into the future gives the optimistic Oaklander something to think about.

CLEVER COMEDIES FEATURE GREAT BILL AT ORPHEUM

Frank Davis Steps From One Act to Another and is Appreciated.

Frank Davis did a full day's work at the Orpheum theater yesterday, but his efforts were not appreciated.

Davis, a comedian, appears with Adele Darnell in a clever part called "Birdseed," which comes third on this week's well balanced entertaining bill. He and Miss Darnell scored a ten-strike through the medium of his cleverness, her comeliness and the amusing lines of the sketch.

As Davis left the stage, he was advised that James Carle, principal comedian of the "Thanksgiving" sketch which comes fifth on the program had suddenly become ill and could not appear. Davis volunteered to substitute, made the costume change, had twenty minutes in which to study the parts and played it without a halt or a prompt. Assisting him were Ronal Claire and Alice Francis.

Added to the difficulty of jumping into the rôle at a few minutes notice was the fact that the part is one known in the parlance of the stage as tricky, having a host of one-word cues and lines on which the success or failure of a comedy scene depends. Due to his efforts both "Birdseed" and "Thanksgiving" scored heavily.

While this was the outstanding event of the bill there are several other acts worthy of more than passing mention. Millie Collins, the veteran speaker of the house, returned with a new monologue up to his high comedy standard; and by Voyer and Velma Hinkle head a musical comedy tabloid with a come-up surprise.

The bill is opened by Crystal Bennett, Cleo Ruffy and Leo Daniels in an acrobatic act which scored despite an accident to Miss Ruffy which necessitated the cutting short of the routine; Lucas and Inez round out the program with an acrobatic and posing turn featuring a three-year-old youngster who amused with his infant specialty. The feature picture was William Farnum in "Perjury."

This week's program is up to Orpheum standard and was satisfactory in every respect.—W. S.

High Scions of Romany Royalty Wed at Capital

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 26 (By International News Service)—

Far from the public and peeping eyes of the curious, "Prince" George Williams and his bride, "Princess" Nastasy Marks of Romany royalty, are on their honeymoon today. With them to enjoy the week's colorful ceremonies and feasting are practically all of the Gypsies in the western half of the United States. For weeks they have been gathering for the ceremonies. "King" George, ruler of all of the Gypsy tribes in the U. S., came as master of ceremonies.

But the preparations became hasty and Sunday thousand of automobiles carried sightseers to the river bank camp. Only cold ashes of the camp fires remained.

The story deals with life in an average American family where a beautiful daughter, who knows she is beautiful, tries to rule the family and nearly wrecks it and sends her father to prison for her longing for finery.

In addition to this Larry Semon in "The Counter Jumper," and "Woolman's Californians."

T. and D.

Playing at the T. & D. theater this week is "The Fire," a dramatic production of Booth Tarkington's famous story of the same name. An all-star cast interprets the various roles. The title rôle is played by Eileen Percy with Helen Jerome Eddy as the maid.

John Gilbert in "The Gleam O'Dawn" and Pearl White in "Know Your Men" will be the attractions for Tuesday and Wednesday.

NEW BROADWAY

After playing to capacity houses yesterday, "The Big Stakes" will be shown for the last time tonight at the New Broadway theater. This production, starring Tom Mix, has every element necessary for enjoyable entertainment. Its action is continually kept at a high pitch, its scenes well directed and the situations well handled and the silicon thrill of romance is woven throughout the story. The direction and action are far above the ordinary.

One of the clowns caught Hockwald's eye and tore it from the socket. Singularly, however, prompt action by the surgeons not only saved the optic but the eyesight as well and there is only an almost imperceptible mark today to remind Hockwald of his harrowing experience. Nowadays he gives lions so much room that he wouldn't cross the bay to see the Snow pictures.

The artists on the program include, besides Marie, Carlo Roma herself, High Williams, Charles M. Aron, Marion Rhodes Davis, Fred Emerson Brooks and Mrs. Molie Melvin devoting at the piano.

CHIMES

Today is the last showing of Wallace Reid in "The Big Day," a picture story new to the public and filled with fun and thrills.

The management offers Clara Kimball Young in "Enter Madam," Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 27 and 28. This is an elaborate production of the New York's artistic success, ran forty-five weeks on Broadway. It is the story of a prima donna who neglected a husband and found out that she had another man who had found Elliott Dexter, Louis Dressler and Lionel Belmore. On the program is a torchy comedy with Johnny Hines and the Pathé News and Review, March 1, 2 and 3. Harold Lloyd will be seen in "Dr. Jack."

Halley's comet, which was first discovered in 240 B. C., will again appear in 1988.

PANTAGES

A feature picture, "The Ghost Patrol," and Lillian Birchard in a comedy act heading the schedule. They are on the bill at the Pantages, review of the program will appear tomorrow.

It is estimated that a man who lives to be 70-years-old spends six years eating.

FRANKLIN

"The Beautiful and Damned," a film version of the famous book by F. Scott Fitzgerald, which created a sensation a couple of years ago, is showing at the Franklin theater this week to large and appreciative audiences.

Marie Prevost is the star as Gloria, a convincing role. Miss Prevost is assisted by an excellent cast, including Kenneth Harlan, Tully Marshall, Cleo Ridgeway, Louise Parsons, Clarence Burton, Walter Long and Harry Myers. The latter is the author of his work in "The Connecticut Yankee."

"The Beautiful and Damned" was elaborately filmed and is a real feature of thrills and romance.

Charles Forsyth and his intimate symphony offer concerts nightly at 7 and 9:15 o'clock.

GERALDINE AND CLARICE FASHIONS

TRY Geraldine's
SHOULDER

Listen, World

DURING the war the young men were trained to face the enemy by most dramatic methods. Bags were filled with straw to represent the foe, and the budding warrior went through a "daily dozen" of mimic murders by ramming said sacks with his bayonet. Which was supposed to have an exhilarating influence upon the male psychology, although a little hard on the sacks.

This sort of thing has now become inexpedient, if not actually dangerous. In the best society, But I would like to revive it, the practice would prove helpful? About a training school for wives with a sack stabbing course whereby the bride-to-be might learn to manage her future John Henry? Stuffed sacks would represent husbands admirably. And any one who has ever raised a husband by hand will instantly

Here's "Bitter" again. Bitter made herself famous, and infamous, in this column by declaring that she didn't love her baby because the baby's care kept her at home, and that she would gladly give her away if her husband would permit, and pleased to say that "the gang" had treated her with the contempt which she well deserves:

"Dear Geraldine,

"I simply must defend at least one of the awful things that have been written to you about me, or which you in your versatile mind have composed yourself. Be that as it may, I must take exception to the letter by J. T. F., who said that I dare say she (Bitter), the ungrateful mother, has misled much as far as education is concerned."

"Well, I do not know J. T. F., but I dare say I have had as much education as he or she has had to date at any rate."

"I was educated in a boarding school (was always head of the class, too) and after graduating had two years at Berkeley at the University of California. While I was there I met my husband and married him, so never graduated. In our present state and my mental attitude toward life (to quote J. T. F.), it seems hard to believe that I ever attended football games and pamarion rallies with such carefree enthusiasm and enjoyment.

"I know personally several of the professors' wives who have no children because of the low salaries of their husbands, and I can't say that I blame them a bit. Not that they are any better than the wives of laboring men, etc., but I believe these wives, all wives, in fact, should refuse to have children unless their husbands earn a salary consistent with the higher life. In other words, no one should have children unless they can afford it. I can't imagine the professors' wives whom I know, refined, cultured women, scrubbing floors, washing clothes, etc., which they would have to do if they had babies, and which the wives of working men evidently do not mind doing, thus placing themselves voluntarily on a lower plane than the professors' wives.

"You never printed the addresses which I asked you for, Geraldine, so now I go to the movies once a week anyhow and leave the baby home locked up in her room anyhow so don't worry, old dear.

"In conclusion, as regards the maternal instinct, I think you're all wrong. You either burn with it or not. I know my little girl has been told to do it all day. So how is that old knowledge all?"

"You don't have to publish this. You probably won't anyway, but please defend my education.

"Yours, BITTER."

"No, I will not defend your education," I replied.

Remarks by saying that I consider you the most uneducated woman I have ever met. A newspaper woman meets many people, Bitter. But never before has it been my unfortunate experience to meet a mother who regards her baby as you regard yours. Education is not a matter of going to school, reading books, gaining credits. Education is a culture of the mind and heart, an enrichment in human values. Your years in the university taught you nothing but selfish envy, conceit, laziness. A kindly cow is better educated than you are, for her spirit is fitted to her mission. All the more shame to you if you enjoyed the benefits of excellent tuition, with such poor return. You, who benefited by the state's bounty, are now a disgrace to the community which paid your way.

No mother should be forced to have babies, and no wise mother will have a baby which she cannot support. That is not the question. The question is simply whether a woman will "carry on" worthily since the baby has come or whether she will prove herself a contemptible snarler and whiner, as you are proving yourself. It's not only that you are a poor mother and wife, but you are also a bad mother and wife. ## Revelations of a Wife

The Unspoken Question Which Banished Madge's Happiness.

At Allen Drake's revelation, Lillian turned to me, kissed me warmly, and then taking me by the shoulders, held me at arms' length and looked at me keenly.

"So-o!" she said, releasing me with a little shake. "What was your headache?" was it? You worked all night long, didn't you? But, for the love of Lulu, come over here and tell me how you did it. I'm spavined and spring-haltered when it comes to code solving, and I'd like to know what license you have to jump into the ring and do a stunt like this. I thought your specialty was history so old that it crumbles."

Beneath her rillery there ran a motif of loving pride in the feat I had accomplished, and I knew that my generous, big-hearted friend was far more pleased at my success than she would have been over any similar triumph of her own.

"That's just the trick she turned," Allen Drake said. "That inside code was based on the Sumerian syllable writing—only the characters were cut in half, and I'll apprise the asteroids they had me going in full circles."

There wasn't the slightest starting point, of course, unless you recognized them, which I distinctly didn't. And then the Chief here—opined he'd like to have his daughter take a slant at 'em. Frankly, I had an impudent smile in my sleeve, for which I beg everybody's pardon humbly. But, believe me, I was reduced to pug when Mrs. Graham drifted in, took one look at 'em and decided they were uneatable. And believe me, she turned the trick.

The names and dates she supplied fit like the paper on the wall. Lillian whirled on him, and I saw that his last sentence had roused some powerful emotion in her.

LILLIAN WANTS FACTS.

"Names," she said tensely. "Names of the other camp? Let me see them."

She took the paper he held out to her and scanned it closely, while all of us scanned her. And when she had finished and had returned the paper, I thought I detected a flash of relief in her eyes, almost as if she had dreaded to find in the list some name, the absence of which had made her breathe more easily.

"Good work!" she commented. "Now let me hear all about it."

Allen Drake waved his hand impressively toward me, and I flushed painfully.

"I wasn't anything," I protested. "Mr. Drake had all the code involved except the missing names, and they were in this syllable writing, which I happened to recognize because of having studied it with Prof. Severance. And once I had the completed characters, it was really very simple, almost like a child's riddle. You see—"

I forgot my embarrassment as I saw their absorption in my explanation, and for the next half hour I was the center of an interested circle, while I checked up with them every step of the work I had done. And when I had finished, the look of admiration in which there was also distinct respect on the faces of Lillian, Allen Drake and my father—the three persons who possess the keenest brains of my acquaintance—was like a draught of heady wine to me.

"OH, I LOVE TO!"

In my work with them before, I had held the position of a humble assistant and had the common sense to know that in many things that would still be my status. But at this moment I was unqualified, one of them, on equal terms of thrill me.

"You may think this is all, but it isn't!" Allen Drake struck in, when I had finished. "Mrs. Graham modestly tries to assure you that this was a fluke in a pan-borne of her knowledge of those old-time records. But I'm here to say that she's there four ways from the jack when it comes to a head for codes. And they have to be born that way. Come, Mrs. Graham, you promised me a slant at that 'childish nonsensical code' you devised for your own amusement. Trot it out, please."

Without a word I pushed over to him the code I had mentioned, with the key written out. He studied it carefully for a minute or two, then beckoned my father and Lillian to him. They looked over his shoulder, while apparently oblivious to my presence, he pointed out the different phases of it. Then he waved his hand toward me with a manner distinctly suggestive. I told myself with an involuntary shudder, of a teacher exhibiting a prize pupil.

" Didn't I tell you?" he asked triumphantly. "She's a natural code. Now, how that for a word, Chief? How about it? You sometimes help me out, sometimes you help me out, sometimes there isn't much money in it, although the rewards are sometimes quite satisfactory, but—

"Oh, I'd love to!" I cried impulsively. Then I stopped abruptly, the realization brought by the words, "sister, evidently involves

The Human Race

Well named—
The human race—
When we apply the sprint to life—
For at the starting tape we stand—
Each man stripped down to do his best—
And when the starter's gun barks clear—
We plunge ahead—
With eyes set on a distant goal—
And some there are who have not trained—
To go the route—
And ere they've rounded Life's first turn—They're winded—breath-spent—without hope—
And noting some inviting place—
Where pleasure stands with smiling eyes—
We pause to get our second breath—
And though the braver ones keep on—
Still firm to go the marathon—
That those who win must ever go—
We hesitate—and fain would stay—
Where giddy fairies ever play—
And mock in loud derision—
The ones who struggle to the end—
To breast the tape a winner—
Today I see my boyhood chum—
Who was my pal in village days—
With heart of gold—and firm—
It seems so strange that we were friends—
When all our tastes were different—
For when as boys we hiked went—
I climbed the trees to find the nestings—
Of little wide-mouthed birdies there—
And thought it sport to tease the mothers—
While he with book was in deep study—
He wanted me to study, too—
But I was full of yawns and listless—
And thought dry books a dingy bore—
The fish were hungry for my baiting—
And jumped for more—
I had no time to give to books—
And thus we grew each loving other—
Until one day we faced the starter—
Both entered in the human race—
And he was trained right to the minute—
And keen to go—
While I moped up to face the starter—
With footsteps slow—
For why should I put forth hard effort—
When there were fishes in the stream—
Let those who will go forth to battle—
Let me but dream—
Along the shady banks of life—
And so we chums too soon were parted—
Each one to take his chosen way—
So resting where the giddy fairies—
Had beckoned me that summer's day—
I loll at ease and read a letter—
It's from my pal—he's struck his stride—
This news just fills my heart with pride—
For some day I with smiling face—
Will hear he won the human race.

MOVING TOWERS AND EUROPE'S FIRST CANNON.

Sometimes when armies at would build ditches a little distance from the walls. The ditches would be covered so as to look like firm ground. If a tower was rolled over such a ditch it would fall in and be wrecked.

Besides moving towers the attackers often used little machines which looked quite a bit like canons. They had hollow barrels, but no gunpowder was used in them until near the end of the Middle Ages.

The "balls" were good-sized stones. When the machines were "wound up" the stones could be hurled over the walls. Our picture ties the large shields which protect the soldiers outside.

The little cannon looks like one of the first which was used with gunpowder and stone balls.

Cities as well as castles were often put under attack. One of the most noted city sieges was against Prague. That was the city where John Hus went to college. The people there liked Hus. After he was burned at the stake they tried to follow his teachings.

Both the emperor and the pope became angry toward Prague. The pope ordered them to "make war" against the city. Two hundred thousand men tried to capture it.

Prague was so well defended, however, that the attackers became tired and marched away.

THIS AND THAT.

It takes patience to be a good cook.

Rub the creaky closet doors and bureau drawers with soap.

Throw some rock salt on the slow fire and see how quickly it will burn up.

Wipe off the broad-leaved palms occasionally with soapy water.

Baking soda is a splendid remedy for rashes such as prickly heat.

Be sure to thoroughly dry the iron frying pan after washing. It turns very easily.

SUCCESSFUL OMELET.

No sure and easy small pan for the best types of mud spilt guards more than forty different appliances were displayed.

A movement is being inaugurated to equip all cars with a protection against the "slamming" at high speed.

This picture was made toward the end of the Middle Ages. It shows an attack on a castle.

walls. Then soldiers rushed across to the attack. The men on the walls might be driven off. Then the enemy would leap down and try to finish the captain of the castle.

Or else the soldiers in the castle did their best to keep the towers and cover of night they might go out to try to set fire to a tower which was just being built.

If they couldn't do that they

the same question which had sprung for my newly discovered pastime.

pulsively. Then I stopped abrupt-

JUBILEE'S PARDNER

by SUDI MARTIN'S

Yesterday would of been a pleasant day if it had not of been Sunday so that a fella had to go to Sunday school.

Hopper told me at Sunday school that the bunch think I am getting to be a stisy because I always have my lessons. I learnt—that time when Jubilee was sick and the teacher let me stay home with him—if I would get my lessons good all that week that it is easier to get my lessons than it is to tell my teacher and my father why I didn't get them. It takes a fella a whole lot of time to keep from getting caught while he is not getting his lessons; but it only takes him a little while to get them and then the dirty work for the day is all done.

The Sunday school teacher asted me what happened to my eye and I told her I looked through a knot hole with it. She said it must of been a small knot hole and that I must of thought I had to stick my eye all the way through it by the looks of it. And when she said that I turned my head to grin at Youniss and she said: "You must of listened through the same knot hole with your ear, didn't you?" I told her: "No mom."

Today when I woke up and let Jubilee down out of the window by the rope in his teeth it was not very cold but it was snowing great big flakes that were coming down like feathers. Jubilee kinda liked it and I was white on my head and shoulders by the time I got to the barn. I thought I would try not getting my lessons for a change this morning, but some way or other I couldn't.

It was wash day and Mush had got a tub full of water by the basement for Little Snow White, which is his wife, to do the washing in when we were gone. Well, at recess I started a game of root-and-a-half and I got them to play

by the basement door and finely

I got the Lost Bag of Trips when it was his down, right by the tub with his back to the wall.

"Eh? What's that? Who is Bob Sled?" asked Uncle Wiggily, as he shook his pink, twinkling nose outside the door. "I don't know anybody named Bob Sled."

"Here it is," chattered Billie Bushytail, the squirrel. "Wasn't Uncle Wiggily funny," he whistled to Jackie Bow Wow, the puppy dog, "to think a bob sled was a boy."

"Oh, I guess he did it for fun," said Uncle Wiggily. "I was wondering if Bobby Ringtail, the raccoon boy, had changed his name to Sled. Why, yes, I'll come out and have some fun with you. Where's the bob sled I thought I was?"

"Bob sled is broken—I guess I didn't make it right," he said to Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper, saw Mr. Longears making something in the yard back of his bungalow.

"What in the world are you building, Wiggily?" she asked.

"I'm making myself a bob sled," answered the bunny.

"What? A bob sled—are you going coasting at your age?" asked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, holding up her paws surprised like.

"Yes, I am," answered Uncle Wiggily, calm and indifferent.

"I'm coasting a while ago on the boys' bob sled and it was fun. So I'm going to have a sled of my own."

Uncle Wiggily had bought two sleds at the five and ten cent store and with a long board, a hammer and nails he was making what he thought was a bob sled like that the animal boys had.

"Now I'll go out and try it on a hill all by myself," said Uncle Wiggily, when his sled was finished.

"Of course, I may not have made this just right, and perhaps I won't know how to coast very well

HAWAIIAN CUPID HAWAIIAN JUGGLER CROP SHIPPED TO BAY REFINERIES

Largest Shipments Coming in Now; Quarter Million Bags Arrive.

Continued prosperity for the cane sugar refineries of San Francisco and the Bay region is indicated from the fact that the entire 1922 crop of Hawaiian island raw sugar will continue to be shipped through the port of San Francisco, as during 1922. None of it will go East, according to shipping men in a position to know.

Shipments of Hawaiian raw sugars are now larger than at any time since the 1922 crop began moving last month. The Matson Navigation Company, whose steamers handle most of the sugar tonnage in the Pacific, San Francisco, reported this week that more than a quarter of a million bags of raw Hawaiian sugar have arrived on its ships in the last seven days. The steamer Mahukona brought in 68,621 bags on Monday morning, the Lurline arrived on Tuesday morning, the Caroline arrived with 110,000 bags, and the ship with 110,000 bags record shipment for this season to date, but nearly so large as will arrive within a few months on the Matson Line's big freighters Manulani and Manukai, both of which have during the peak of the sugar movement carried more than 200,000 bags each. The steamer Mauna arrived on Wednesday morning laden with 163,532 bags, making the total for three days of 282,663 bags. Next week it is likely that a shipment almost as large will be received.

Early estimates on the 1923 Hawaiian raw sugar crop made last December put it at 200,000 tons for the plantations included in the Sugar Factors' Ltd., and 508,100 tons for all plantations in the islands. Including the 18,000-ton estimate of Honolulu Plantation, the only sugar company in Hawaii making refined sugar, the grain crop is estimated at 598,100 tons. These figures have probably been changed slightly since that time, owing to weather conditions, which cause the final output every year to vary somewhat from the original estimate by decreasing or increasing the growth of sugar cane in the fields.

WEATHER REPORT

All California: Tonight and Tuesday fair; moderate to fresh northwesterly wind.

Oregon, Idaho and Nevada: Tonight and Tuesday fair; gentle northwest winds.

Washington: Fair tonight; Tuesday probably fair; gentle variable winds, mostly southerly.

CONDITIONS: A well defined storm is centered over the Southern Plateau and a large area of the area overlying the Central Pacific and Northern Rocky Mountain states. Rain has fallen in portions of Texas, Tennessee and the Ohio valley and snow has occurred in Northern Arizona, Wyoming, Eastern Colorado, Montana and Western Dakotas. Record temperatures have fallen to 50° F. in Southern Nevada, Southeastern Idaho and Wyoming. The outlook is for fair weather in the San Francisco forecast district tonight and Tuesday, with slightly higher temperatures in the North Pacific states.
